RezZilient, Inc. Selects Healthvision's Cloverleaf as Integration Partner

DALLAS – September 11, 2009 – Healthvision announced today that RezZilient, Inc., a provider of healthcare software and services, has selected Cloverleaf® to serve as the integration solution for their MScript360 software suite.

The MScript360 suite offers Hospitals, Physician Practices, Radiology Groups and Clinics the tools to speed, enhance and reduce the cost compared to the current way they capture clinical information. Their goal is to reduce your transcription & documentation time and costs; with innovative easy to use Web-Based software such as Natural Language Processing, Dictation/Transcription, Speech Recognition, Document Management, EMRFlex, etc.

Once the information is captured, their modules will seamlessly help you code, index, route, share and integrate your clinical information into any Health Information System or process.

Using Cloverleaf, RezZilient's MScript360 suite will be able to seamlessly exchanges information among various applications, data repositories, and information technology systems as needed, in real-time, regardless of its location or format.

“We are confident in our selection of Cloverleaf as our integration solution partner,” said Mark Golino, RezZilient's chief executive officer. “Cloverleaf has a solid reputation for being “bullet-proof”, easy-to-use, and highly reliable.”

Russell Fleischer, Healthvision's chief executive officer, says, “Healthvision enables healthcare information technology vendors to enhance their offerings through state of the art interoperability. The ability to quickly and easily integrate their application into their client's environment is a critical success factor and we are proud to serve as RezZilient's integration partner.”
